1. A basket for Grandmother

Once upon a time there was a sweet little girl whom everyone loved. Her Grandmother had made her a little red riding hood, and because she wore it so often, she was called Little Red Riding Hood. One day her mother said, "Take this cake and bottle of wine to your sick Grandmother. Stay on the path through the wood, and do not stray." Little Red Riding Hood promised, took the basket, and set out through the forest.

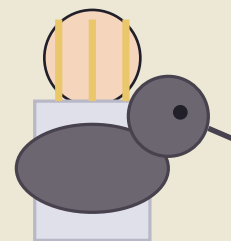

2. The Wolf on the path

As she walked, a Wolf met her. He had wicked thoughts, but spoke kindly. "Good day, Little Red Riding Hood. Where are you going?" "To my Grandmother, who is ill." The Wolf asked where she lived, and she told him. Then he said, "See what pretty flowers grow here! Why do you not pick a nosegay for her?" The child left the path and wandered among the flowers, while the Wolf ran straight to Grandmother's cottage.

3. At Grandmother's door

The Wolf knocked at the cottage door. He disguised his voice and was let in. Soon after, Little Red Riding Hood arrived with her basket. She was surprised to find the door standing open. Inside, her Grandmother lay in bed with the curtains drawn. "Oh, Grandmother," she said, "what big ears you have!" "The better to hear you with." "What big eyes you have!" "The better to see you with." "What big teeth you have!" "The better to eat you with!"

4. Deliverance in the wood

A huntsman passing by heard a great noise in the cottage. He stepped inside, drew his knife, and rescued Grandmother and Little Red Riding Hood from the Wolf. They filled the Wolf's belly with stones; when he woke and tried to run away, the stones were so heavy that he fell down dead. Little Red Riding Hood went home, and from that time she kept to the path and minded her mother's words.
