

Little Red Riding Hood

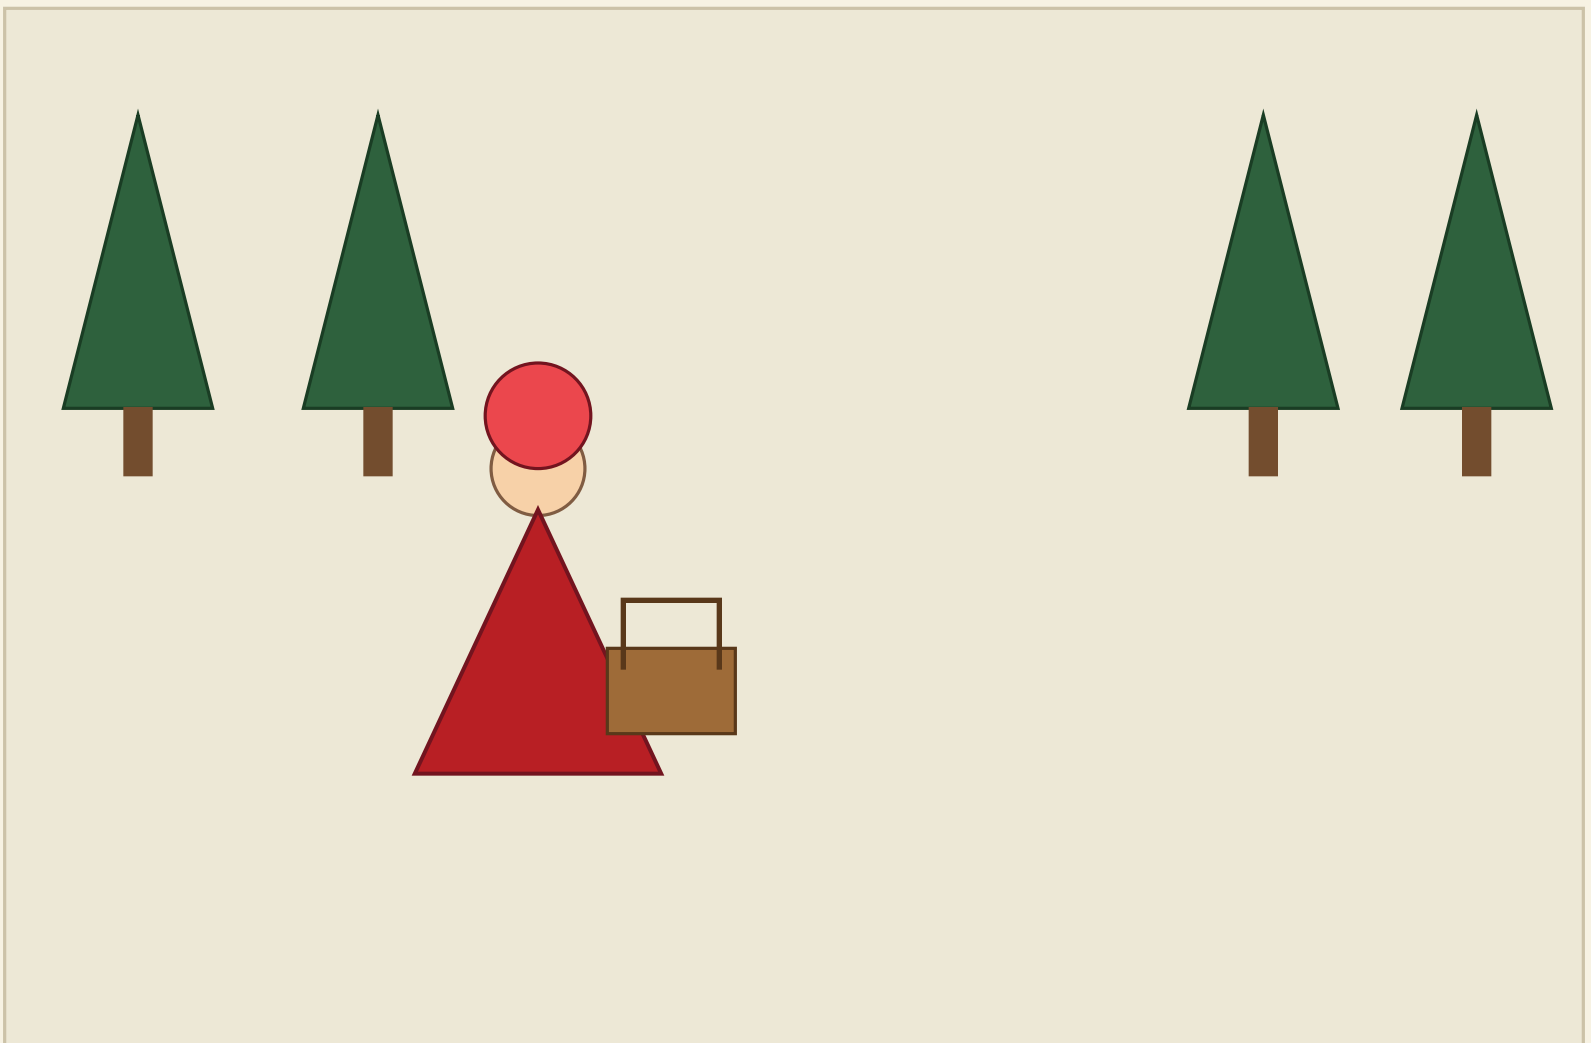

An abridged retelling of the Brothers Grimm fairy tale

Public domain · a Kinora demo book ? watch the book.

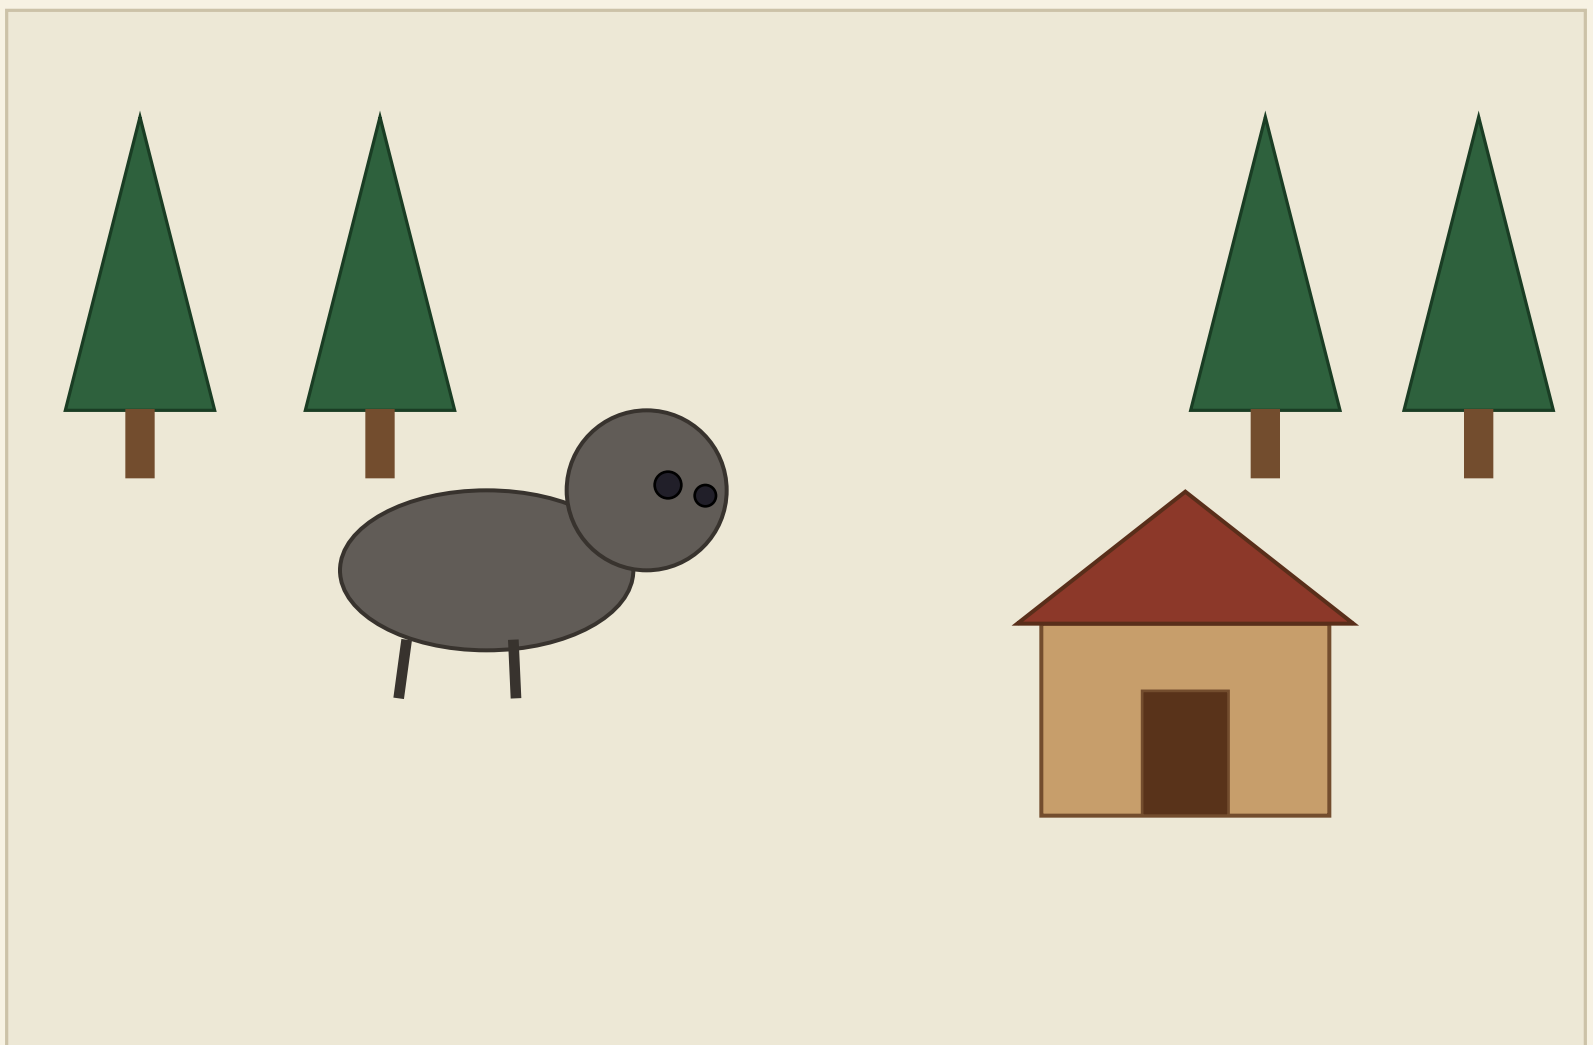

1. Into the woods

Once upon a time there was a sweet little girl whom everyone loved. Her grandmother had made her a little red velvet cap, and she wore it so often that she was called Little Red Riding Hood. One day her mother said, "Take this cake and bottle of wine to your grandmother, who is ill. Go quietly and do not leave the path, for the woods are deep." Red Riding Hood promised, took her basket, and set out through the tall green forest.

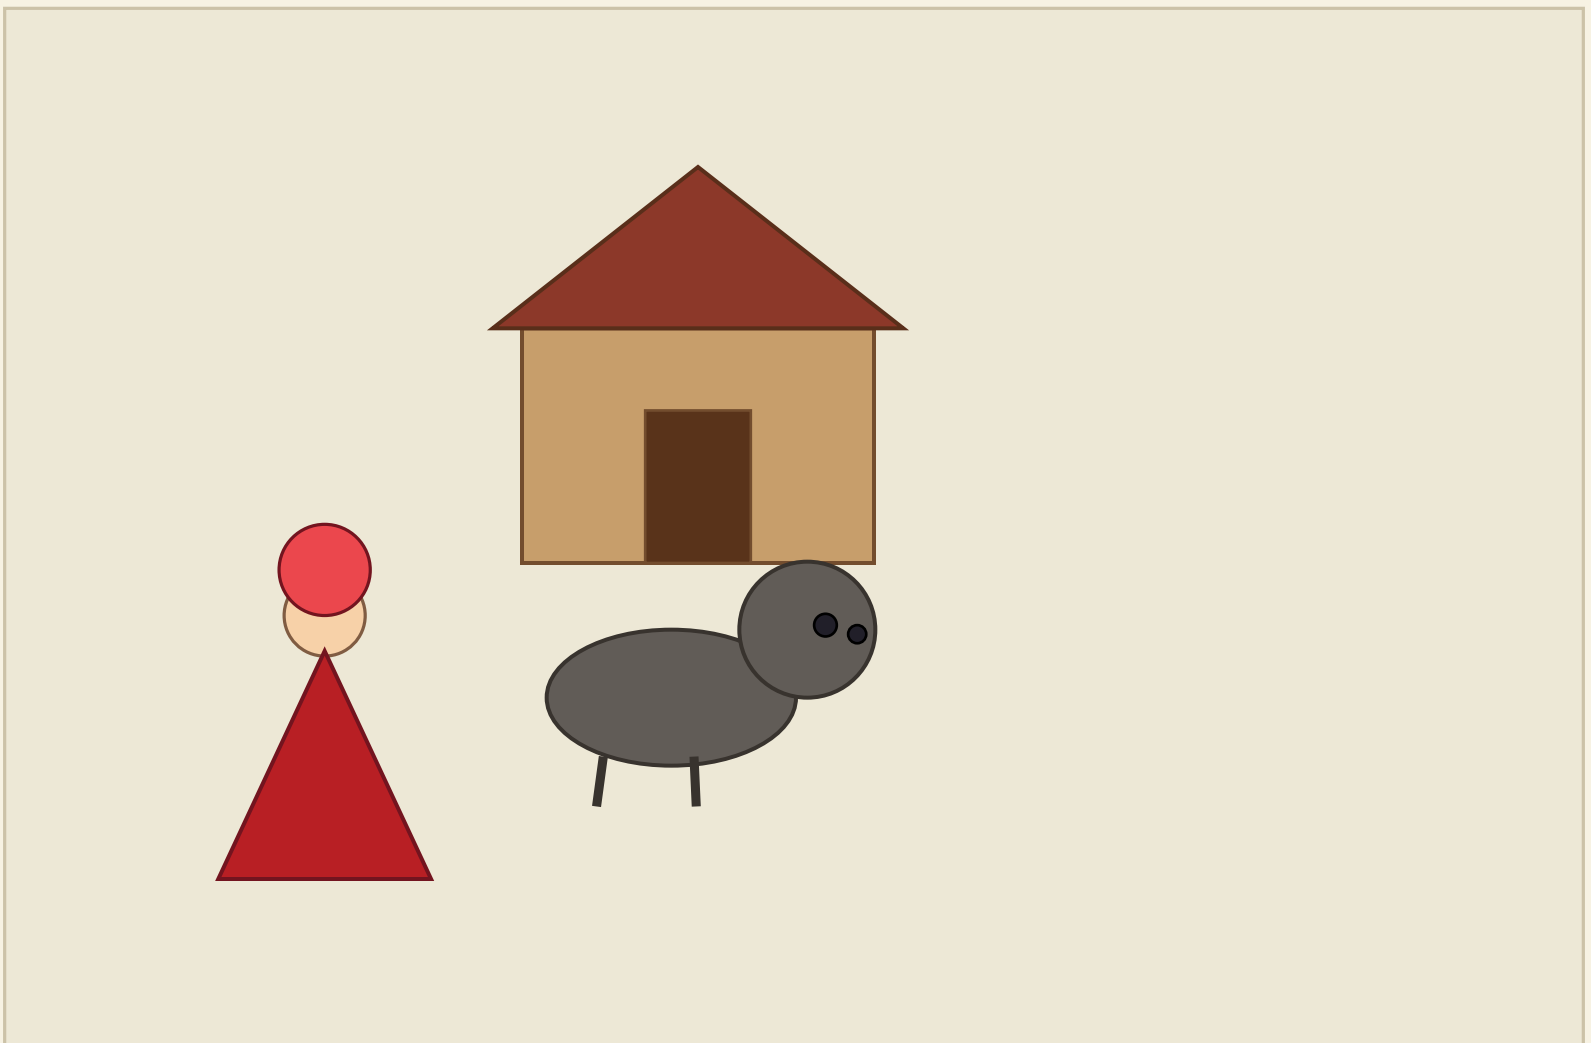

2. The wolf on the path

On the way she met a Wolf, who wished her good morning but thought to himself, "What a tender young creature!" He asked where she was going. "To my grandmother, who lives beyond the mill under the three great oaks." The Wolf ran ahead by the shorter path, knocked at the cottage door, and when the old woman opened it he swallowed her whole. Then he put on her nightcap, lay in her bed, and drew the curtains.

3. Grandmother, what big eyes!

When Red Riding Hood arrived she wondered that the door stood open. She went to the bed and said, "Grandmother, what big ears you have!" "The better to hear you with." "Grandmother, what big eyes you have!" "The better to see you with." "Grandmother, what big teeth you have!" "The better to eat you with!" And the Wolf sprang from the bed. Red Riding Hood screamed so loudly that a huntsman, passing near, ran in and rescued her.

4. Safe at home

The huntsman cut open the sleeping Wolf, and Grandmother stepped out, alive and unhurt. They filled the Wolf with heavy stones; when he woke and tried to flee, he sank. Red Riding Hood brought her grandmother the cake and wine, and the old woman soon felt stronger. Red Riding Hood thought, "Never again will I wander off the path when my mother has warned me," and she went home through the woods as the sun set gold between the trees.

